

Guidelines for the Procedure for Application for Scholarships for International Students in 2025 Academic Year (April 2025 – March 2026)

1. Overview

There are two types of scholarships: “Scholarships on University Recommendation” and “Scholarships for Direct Application” for which international students can apply directly. For the first of these, “Scholarships on University Recommendation,” candidates recommended by the university are selected among the applicants selected by each graduate school.

In the Graduate School of Information Science and Technology, international students wishing to apply for “Scholarships on University Recommendation” must undergo “Documentary screening” described below. A recommendation standings table based on the results of this screening is compiled every year. From among the candidates wishing to apply for the offered scholarships, nominees are selected in order of ranking on the recommendation standings table.

Please be sure to remember that the above screening takes place only once a year.

In addition, international students can apply for “Scholarships for Direct Application” whether or not they undergo the above screening process.
