

To Students Applying for the Teaching Fellow Positions

Toshihiro Tanaka
Executive Vice President of Education

Teaching Fellow Training (Autumn time)

Osaka University restructured the conventional Junior Teaching Assistant (JTA) and Senior Teaching Assistant (STA) System and will introduce a new Teaching Assistant (TA) and Teaching Fellow (TF) System in AY2017. Under the new system, TAs will serve as JTAs while TFs will serve as STAs with wider responsibilities that will help them foster educational development skills.

To be more specific, TAs will take over the conventional role of JTAs, while TFs will take on greater responsibilities than STAs, including participating in the process of planning for and developing lectures under guidance of academic staff, which require advanced and comprehensive perspectives, design prowess and ability to take action. Thus, the new system will help TFs enhance their teaching and educational development skills.

Students applying for TF positions must meet certain requirements, including attending preliminary online training which will be held as shown in the attachment. Without attending the training, no one is permitted to work as a TF.

Note that attending the training does not guarantee acceptance as a TF: whether you are hired as a TF or not depends on the policies and tasks of the graduate schools/centers that seek TFs. For more information, inquire at the relevant section of the graduate school/center seeking TAs and TFs.

- How to apply for the training

Fill in the form “Application for TF Training (Autumn time)” available on KOAN as a general survey. We will inform students who applied for CLE attendance which is necessary to be a TF. If you apply for TF seminar, be sure to take CLE course by the day when TF online seminar will be held. (TF online seminar consists of CLE course and TF online training, and if you would like to be a TF, you have to take both.)

Application deadline: Sunday, August 30, 2020 [The deadline must be met.]

Reference information

○ TF is stipulated to be “mainly responsible for supporting educational activities deemed necessary by the relevant graduate school/center under educational guidance of academic staff for undergraduate and master’s students, and also for planning for such educational support tasks on his or her own and implementing the tasks while controlling the progress of lectures.” Accordingly, a TF takes on higher-level educational support tasks than a TA.

○ Only students who meet all the following requirements are qualified as TFs.

- (1) Graduate students in doctoral degree programs* with outstanding academic performance
- (2) Students who have experience of working as a TA for more than 18 hours (including those who are deemed to have equivalent teaching experience at universities or other educational and research institutions)
- (3) Students who have completed TF training conducted within the past four years from the date of acceptance as a TF.

* In case of students of the Graduate School of Frontier Biosciences, the eligibility is limited to those in the third and subsequent years of the five-year doctoral degree program.
